

Navigating the intersection of government and the law: A Dentons Webinar Series

DENTONS

Date and time:

Start: December 17, 2020, 12:00 PM EST

End: December 17, 2020, 1:00 PM EST

While the nation—and arguably the world—waits to see who will lead the various agencies and department responsible for enforcement activities in the new Biden administration and who will control legislative committees responsible for investigation and oversight activities, there is no question that we are all bracing for a seismic shift in policy, agenda and direction in 2021.

Dentons is pleased to invite you and your colleagues for an interactive conversation with industry leading panelists as they share their analysis on the impact of a new administration on current investigations and anticipated undertakings by regulators and prosecutors, their early thoughts on new leadership at federal and state agencies and law enforcement departments, commentary on a less-than-clear legislative hearing picture and early steps organizations may take to best prepare for these uncertain times.

This webinar will be the first in a series the Firm will host throughout 2021 as our cross-disciplinary team provides insight on policy and regulatory developments in Washington, statehouses and across the globe. Our February webinar will examine early Biden enforcement actions and pivot to the topics of US Policy towards China, Cuba, Venezuela and Iran under a new administration, and potential changes to sanctions, export control, and CFIUS reviews in the coming year. Please look for your invitation in the coming weeks.
