

Dentons writes Uzbekistan chapter in The Mining Law Review 2021

November 18, 2021

Tashkent — Partners Eldor Mannopov and Bobur Shamsiev from Dentons' Tashkent office contributed a chapter to the tenth edition of The Mining Law Review, published by Law Business Research.

Uzbekistan has the world's fourth-largest gold reserves and is ranked twelfth in the world and second among the CIS countries in terms of mining. Metallurgy is one of the largest domestic industries, and the most mined minerals are copper, gold, silver and uranium. The long-term programs adopted in recent years aim to accelerate the development, modernization and expansion of production of the large enterprises in the mining and metallurgical industry.

The adoption and further implementation of the presidential and government decisions in the mining sector signal that mining and subsoil use will continue to be among the leading economic sectors and key areas for attracting foreign investment to Uzbekistan.

In the Uzbekistan chapter of The Mining Law Review, Dentons provides a comprehensive analysis of the year in review, as well as an outlook of future developments in Uzbekistan, covering the below topics:

1. Legal framework
2. Mining rights and required licenses and permits
3. Environmental and social considerations
4. Operations, processing and sale of minerals
5. Charges
6. Outlook and trends
