

Adam Brown

Managing Practice Development Lawyer

Managing Practice Development Lawyer

London

D +44 20 7246 7014

M +44 78 8151 8384

adam.brown@dentons.com

Overview

Adam is a senior associate in the Energy practice. He has extensive experience in energy, planning, environmental and general public law, much of it gained over a decade spent working for the UK Government in a variety of legal and policy-making roles. As well as advising on the commercial and/or regulatory aspects of projects in the electricity sector, including mergers and acquisitions and the construction of renewable, fossil-fuel and nuclear developments, he has designed, drafted or helped to negotiate legislation and other regulatory schemes in areas ranging from energy and environment to company law and railways, contributing to several UK Parliamentary Bills and major pieces of EU legislation in addition to drafting statutory instruments, licence conditions, model documentation for regulated companies and industry-wide agreements.

Areas of focus

Practices

- Energy
- Public Law
- Public Policy and Regulation

Industry sectors

- Energy
- Government
- Autonomous Vehicles

Issues and opportunities

- Brexit

Education

- King's College London, 2003, Postgraduate Diploma in EU Competition Law
- Oxford University, 1996, DPhil (Early Greek Poetry)
- College of Law, London, 1996, Legal Practice Course
- College of Law, London, 1995,
Law
- Oxford University, 1992, BA, Literae Humaniores