Overview

Dan Bodle joined the firm in 2000 as a trainee lawyer qualifying into the Litigation and Dispute Resolution department in 2002. Dan has experience of a wide range of commercial disputes, including litigation proceedings (in the High Court, Court of Appeal and Supreme Court), international arbitrations, regulatory tribunals and all forms of alternative dispute resolution. Dan works for clients in both the energy and construction sectors and technology, media and telecoms sectors. He has also worked with a number of clients on major projects prior to the commencement of formal proceedings in a strategic risk management role. Dan regularly advises in non-contentious matters on the dispute resolution and liability provisions of a contract.
