Overview

Fabia Cairoli is an associate in our Milan office and a member of the global Intellectual Property and Technology group.

She is specialized in data privacy and she also deals with other IT topics, price promotion events and issues related to the regulations applicable to cultural heritage.

She has gained experience in GDPR compliance projects, specializing in the banking, insurance, industrial and fashion sectors, and provides legal assistance to clients active in e-commerce, application development, food & beverage, retail, media, technology & digital. She has often dealt with cross-border projects. In addition to compliance projects, Fabia is responsible for providing ongoing support to DPOs and compliance departments of client companies and she is involved in the review of data-driven projects and in the periodic training of companies on privacy issues. In her career, she has also drafted numerous DPIAs on complex issues, including the use of chatbots, digital advertising (including in apps), the use of biometric systems for access to protected areas, the installation of wifi systems, and the installation of video surveillance systems.

Insights

Fabia is the author of various online publications and she has contributed to the drafting of the "Commentary on EU Regulation 2016/679 and the updated Privacy Code", 2019. She is a speaker at internal conferences, organized by the Firm for professionals and clients, as well as external conferences (inter alia, AFGE and TopLegal). She regularly publishes contributions to Dentons TMT Bites newsletter and holds meetings during our Digital Breakfasts@Dentons webinars.
