

Overview

With the Bank of Papua New Guinea's reform agenda focused on expanding access and competition within the banking sector, participants need to be ready to seize opportunities.

For guidance, rely on a banking and finance team that has been advising in the area for more than four decades and has assisted the Bank of Papua New Guinea in drafting its banking and superannuation reform legislation since the late 1990s, including the Central Banking Act.

Ranked as a leader in the field of banking and finance law, we are regularly engaged by the major banks, multinational banks, international development banks and agencies, the Independent State of PNG, and the Bank of Papua New Guinea.

Look to us for advice on:

- Regulatory and compliance obligations
- Banking litigation
- Capital markets, derivatives and securities
