

Forest Products and Agribusiness in Australia

Overview

At one time, it was all about the weather. Now consolidation, foreign investment, food security and safety, competition for land from energy and resource companies, water entitlements, biosecurity and ongoing innovations dominate the agribusiness and forestry products agenda.

While your business may be based in the Asia-Pacific, your market, pricing and potential investor base is global. Global market participation involves juggling the constant fluctuation of exchange rates, energy and raw material prices, and investor interest.

To manage the challenges and remain sustainable in the longer term, you require a business partner who can offer in-depth industry knowledge at a local, national and global level.

Benefit from our long-standing relationships with some of the world's largest agribusinesses and forestry products producers—with more than 40 years of experience representing primary producers, secondary processors, investors and trading houses in the dairy, wine, grain, sugar, wool, coffee, copra, coca, rubber, oil palm, cattle and forestry industries.

You will be supported by an agribusiness and forestry products team which is equipped to provide solutions to the financial, operational, regulatory, employment and labor, leasing and real estate, and cross-border challenges you face.

Rely on comprehensive coverage of lawyers experienced across our service areas of banking and finance, commercial dispute resolution, corporate and commercial, employment and labor, financial recovery, foreign investment, infrastructure, property and construction, and tax, and benefit from the support of our global team who, with their experience of advising multinational clients, are ready to assist in securing your position in the global market.
