

Overview

Keeping abreast of transport needs can be demanding as infrastructure is constantly in need of attention. In many markets massive investment is required. In some, entirely new systems are needed to allow people to exploit economic opportunities and respond to new fundamentals. While the sector remains dynamic, budget cuts and the squeeze on private finance may constrain your spending. You also need to consider a vast array of transport options, and your final choice must be sustainable and environmentally friendly. In order to navigate this maze you need a firm that is familiar with the issues and can provide practical solutions.

Let Dentons advise you on these matters. Our experienced team employs lateral thinking about your problems, delivering innovative solutions to help you find a way through the maze. Whether you are seeking advice on optimal market structures, contractual, legal, regulatory, financing, environmental or procurement matters, or a comprehensive risk analysis, our lawyers will assist you every step of the way—ensuring that you have all the facts on which to base an informed decision and helping you formulate policies to deliver your objectives. Our detailed knowledge and experience of project management of major projects means legal issues do not become "blockers"—they empower your project.

Look to our lawyers for innovative business and legal solutions in the transport authorities sector, including:

- Construction
- Dispute management
- Finance, including project finance, PPP and PFI
- General commercial and regulatory advice
- Legislation and regulatory drafting
- Procurement and contracting
- Real estate, planning and zoning
- Reorganization and privatization
- Urban development, regeneration and planning.