

Health Care Compliance and Integrity (United States)

Overview

The Life Sciences and Health Care industries are fraught with many regulatory and enforcement challenges. The best defense that any organization has to combat allegations of fraud and illegal or unethical activity is a comprehensive and effective compliance program. It is imperative that organizations set expectations for employees, board members, vendors and partners to follow, and educate these stakeholders as to their legal and ethical obligations on behalf of the organization.

Understanding organizational risk is a fundamental element of an effective compliance program and Dentons can assist organizations in risk assessment and mitigation strategies that will protect your organization and its constituents. Auditing and monitoring techniques, investigation methods, and reporting mechanisms can make or break the benefits arising from an effective compliance program---and we can help you get there.

When the worst case scenario ensues, you want to partner with a team who understands government requirements and expectations and a partner who can assist you in conducting an investigation and who can address a disclosure or settlement to achieve the best possible outcome. Our diverse team of litigators, fraud and abuse lawyers, coding professionals, former chief compliance officers and former members of CMS and the OIG, have a proven track record of success. We want to work with you.
