

Overview

Whether for commercial purchasers or government-funded, managed-care programs; publicly-traded, privately held or nonprofit organizations; or a national or regional program, health plans of every sort routinely turn to Dentons for business counsel, regulatory analysis, transactional representation, litigation and government relations.

Our Health Care team includes former federal officials with unparalleled experience in Medicare, Medicaid and all aspects of the Affordable Care Act. Leverage our deep knowledge in representing health plans in major acquisitions, joint ventures and day-to-day transactions. We've also been called in to build compliance plans, serve as chief compliance officers and advocate to public officials leading government investigations.

Even if yours is a highly sophisticated health plan, you can call on us when the complexity of regulations becomes overwhelming. Issues as broad as compliance with marketing regulations, fraud and abuse programs and enforcements, government payment policies and state insurance regulation are regular issues for us.

We have counseled health plans on corporate governance, tax matters, information technology deals and clinical quality programs.

And, when called on, our Health Care team has advocated for our clients' positions. We have represented health plans in federal and state courts, before regulatory tribunals and in front of congressional committees.

There is literally no aspect of the business of health plans in which Dentons' involvement has not added value to our clients.
