

Overview

Whether you're securing mineral and mining licenses or titles in preparation for the exploration and permitting phase, or your project is operating at capacity production, you will find value in working with a Dentons team that focuses entirely on the mining industry.

Benefit from working with a team that includes a professional geologist and engineers, and many team members who have worked in-house for mining companies.

Leverage our global reach. We have advised public and private mining companies operating in Africa, North America, South America, Asia, Australia/Oceania and Europe on joint venture agreements, technical services agreements and offtake agreements, and have consulted on countless Aboriginal and environmental and regulatory issues at every phase of exploration and development through to mine reclamation and closure.

Experience our commitment to helping our clients reach their goals, from junior to major explorers, developers and producers. We advise engineering, mining and geological consultants, prospectors, corporations, syndicates, joint ventures and financiers on the complete range of legal matters across every phase of your mining operation.

Areas of focus include:

- Mine Development and Mining Production
- Mine Reclamation and Closure
- Mineral and Mining Title
- Mineral Exploration, Licensing and Permitting
