

Trade and Commodity Finance in Australia

Overview

Both financial institutions and corporate borrowers seek our experience in the full range of trade financing, including structured commodity financings, bilateral loans, syndicated loans, participation funds, letter of credit facilities, documentary credit facilities and account receivable purchases.

Supported by fellow trade finance lawyers from across the world and with our significant experience in the Asia Pacific region, we understand the common issues of operating globally. Our local colleagues are ready to advise on political and economic risks, currency issues and cultural differences.

In advising domestic and multi-national lenders, we have finalized multi-million dollar deals across a range of commodities, from agriculture to oil and gas, aviation, and technology.

For corporate borrowers, we have worked with syndicates of international financiers and export credit agencies from multiple jurisdictions to close deals and deliver significant business growth.

In securing your position, our finance team works closely with our corporate advisory and tax team to ensure you are covered on export contracts, capital adequacy and credit requirements, and domestic and international tax.

Leading the trade and customs area of our corporate team is one of our region's pre-eminent trade and customs lawyers. Benefit from your access to this national and international authority.

In taking advantage of free trade agreements and economic partnerships, rely on a team that will safeguard your commercial interests in finance, tax and contractual arrangements.
