Representative Cases

- WaveMarket v. Locationet, representation of petitioner, WaveMarket, in two IPR trials filed in 2013–2014. Obtained rare grant of second subsequent IPR of same patent, and defeated real party-in-interest and privity challenges to both petitions. After a successful oral hearing and victorious final written decision in the first trial, we obtained a very favorable settlement for our client.
- Jiawei Technology, et al. v. Richmond, ongoing representation of petitioners in multiple pending IPR proceedings filed in 2014 involving solar-powered lighting resulting in nearly all claims canceled after successful oral arguments, pending appeal. Dentons also successfully defended a procedural challenge regarding real party in interest—a rare and important victory for petitioners.
- Ford Motor Company v. Paice et al., ongoing representation of petitioner, Ford, who filed 25 IPR reviews on from through 2015 resulting in hundreds of claims being canceled, pending appeal.
- Wowza v. Adobe, represented patent owner, Adobe, and received one of the first patent owner successes defending a 2012 IPR petition. By obtaining this decision, we preserved Adobe's patent and saved them many thousands of dollars that it would have cost to defend against the IPR.
- eBay, Inc. v. XPRT Ventures, LLC, ongoing representation as third-party requester, eBay, in a multi-billion dollar dispute filed in 2011 involving six inter partes reexaminations. The PTAB has rejected all claims and appeals are presently pending at the Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit.
- Ossia v. Energous, represented patent owner/operating company, Energous, and successfully obtained denial of a PGR petition and denial of all meaningful claims, i.e., 16 of 18 claims, in a second PGR petition, both filed in 2016—an overwhelming victory.
- Asus et al. v. KW-2, represented petitioners, Asus, Dell, HP, and LG, in obtaining a negotiated settlement in an IPR.
