

Mergers and Acquisitions in Europe

Overview

Among the many performance indicators for the European M&A market, a few are stable enough to constitute trends. Technology, media and telecommunications appear to be a driving force behind overall M&A deals across the continent. With energy and natural resources, as well as financial services, a mapping of industries active in European M&A matches Dentons' industry sector core footprint.

Europe remains on the radar for many investors, in particular North American strategic and financial buyers. When you need legal advisors who are deeply rooted in Europe, reach out to Dentons' M&A team to assist you.

Whether you are on the buy or sell side of a transaction, you benefit from a global team, an integrated platform of services and established relationships with investment banks, accounting firms and lenders. We know the players and regulators and how to partner with you when structuring your transaction.

From a takeover bid to a merger, de-merger or consolidation, we are at your side. Whether for Fortune 500 and middle-market companies, private equity investors, bidders and targets, financiers or independent board committees—we get your deal done.
