Overview

With over 20 partners based in the UK, the partner-led M&A practice at Dentons works on both domestic transactions and cross-border deals throughout the EMEA and CIS regions, complemented by further M&A capabilities in Paris, Moscow our Europe, CIS and the Middle East offices.

We work with public and private companies, private equity firms and other investment houses, combining first-rate transactional expertise with a deep knowledge of the industry sectors in which our clients operate.

Particularly well known for our emerging markets and cross-border work, we leverage our international presence with extensive local knowhow to work with global, national and emerging businesses. We draw on our specialists in tax, intellectual property, competition, real estate, employment and pensions so that our clients can execute their chosen transactions and deal structures on time and with minimum disruption to their day-to-day operations.

The volume and value of our cross-border transactions, particularly in high-growth M&A markets, sets us apart from our peers. We are known for our focus on M&A in the manufacturing sector, acting for public and privately-owned companies on acquisitions, joint ventures and disposals. We further focus our work in the key sectors of energy, financial institutions, government, infrastructure and PPP, manufacturing, media and sport, mining, private equity, real estate, retail, technology, telecoms and transportation. In these industries, our advisers hold all the tools necessary to enable our clients to execute smoothly-run deals, which are accomplished effectively and efficiently with the benefit of informed and insightful local and international counsel.
