

Overview

At Dentons Paz Horowitz we understand that data is one of the main assets for the generation of opportunities at a strategic level, decision making and for the design and development of products and services for individuals, organizations of all sizes.

Our team knows the advantages that data represents and the risks that are generated in its collection, storage, use, processing, analysis, communication, international transfer and disposal, so we know the importance of designing comprehensive strategies to take advantage of its value and mitigate the dangers for organizations and companies.

Our work focuses on strengthening compliance with the laws applied to the use of data and implementing proactive responsibility and risk management programs throughout its life cycle, in order to enhance its processes and promote digital transformation and innovation.

In a digital world, where there are no borders, we provide disruptive solutions, capable of solving critical situations. Our team has great experience in processes of digital transformation, innovation, data governance, information security, cybersecurity, privacy, protection of personal data and digital rights. It is made up of the authors of the Organic Law on The Protection of Personal Data of Ecuador, leaders of the automation process of the national commercial registration system and experts in the implementation of comprehensive risk management solutions and regulatory compliance processes
