

Overview

Public law and government regulations have significant implications for transactions and trade, particularly regarding foreign trade issues. In order to clearly understand and assess the business risks and business project strategy, it is crucial to get the understanding of these implications and development of business, legal and investment environment in Russia, CIS and the Caucasus.

Recent developments in anti-corruption legislation, particularly in Russia, have substantially increased the risks for global companies, which leave bribery and corruption unchecked anywhere in their business. Unlimited fines, seizure of income, disbarment from tendering, imprisonment of directors and reputational damage can all arise from increased enforcement by tough regulators with extensive powers and the resources to launch major international investigations.

Dentons offers you its unique knowledge and extensive experience in a wide range of public law issues in Russia, CIS and the Caucasus countries. We help you to implement and adopt policies and procedures to prevent corruption, provide practical training for your employees and conduct careful auditing. All these measures will not only save you money, but will also make your business stronger and more sustainable.
