

Overview

No matter the location of a real estate asset in today's competitive market place, those with an interest in that property will benefit from the local knowledge and global perspective that Dentons brings to the table.

Across the Middle East, we give our clients access to an unrivalled network of offices and associated offices, having opened our first offices in the region in 1964. With more than 50 years in practice, our team of professionals has developed long-standing relationships with business communities and governments, and an unrivalled understanding of the legal and business environment in which our clients operate. This experience and our contacts, particularly in government and municipal departments, allow us to appreciate the importance not only of what the law dictates, but also of how it is applied.

Our real estate lawyers in the region have a deep and wide-ranging understanding of the fundamentals of real estate, and play a significant part in advancing ideas and practice across the industry. Many of our practitioners are bilingual English and Arabic speakers, and represent a broad spectrum of clients on every kind of matter in the industry.

We have renowned practices in real estate finance and restructuring, acquisitions and disposals, development and construction, leasing, hotels and leisure, retail, and dispute resolution and arbitration. Our clients include some of the biggest players in the market, among them financiers, developers, landlords, tenants, corporates, investors and government entities.

From our offices in the United Arab Emirates, Egypt, Jordan, Lebanon, Oman, Qatar and Saudi Arabia we unite our local know-how and international industry expertise of real estate for the benefit of our diverse client base.
