

Overview

Insolvency laws are increasingly coming under more scrutiny. Governments and legislators alike want to alleviate the effects of the global financial crisis. EU legislators are driving better coordination of insolvency proceedings among Member States. In this environment of continual change, you need an experienced partner who can guide you through the relevant laws, regulations and policies to achieve successful commercial outcomes for your business.

Dentons' restructuring, insolvency and bankruptcy lawyers understand the issues you face. We regularly act for debtors, senior lenders, bondholders, insolvency practitioners, private equity firms, distressed investors and loan-to-own buyers in emerging and developed markets. We view your transactional as well as adversarial matters from all angles.

Dentons lawyers can advise you on the local legal framework and guide you on how best to protect your interests by identifying those jurisdictions and laws that are most suited to your needs.

Our global presence means you have access to over 240 restructuring insolvency and bankruptcy lawyers around the world ensuring you are delivered a consistent and seamless service on cross-border matters. Extensive knowledge sharing amongst our lawyers worldwide means we keep you one step ahead of important industry changes.
