

Overview

In a corporate finance environment, decision-maker duties include performance and informed risk management. This is true for critical transactions as well as when reviewing your financing options in the light of your mid- to long-term corporate strategy. Even in an increased EU-harmonized context, there is no room for one-size-fits-all advice: the markets where you operate matter. You need a legal advisor deeply rooted across the continent, connecting you to the key financial hubs.

Partner with Dentons in all aspects of securities transactions and regulation, corporate finance and capital markets. Rely on our experience in representing issuers, underwriters, selling and controlling shareholders and other market participants across a wide spectrum of industry sectors. Our credentials involve business enterprises ranging from some of the world's largest companies to middle-market and emerging businesses.

Look to us to respond with sound advice on public and private offerings of equity and debt securities, compliance with securities laws and disclosure, the filing requirements of stock exchanges and dealings with oversight bodies. Together we can mitigate the risks and identify the best path to a suitable and effective financing strategy.
