

Overview

Now more than ever, Canada is an open, trading nation, an attractive investment destination and a major investor abroad. But the opportunities of globalization have come with challenges and risks from the ever-increasing complexity of international trade and investment rules. Our Canadian and international trade and investment law clients depend on flawless legal advice in order to ensure the success of their international ventures.

We achieve successful outcomes for clients in virtually all aspects of international trade and investment law. Our Trade, WTO and Customs experience and expertise is supported by an incomparable global and regional team of government relations and arbitration experts. With our profound knowledge of trade and investment treaties, laws and regulations, we help develop and implement the right strategies to keep international businesses moving forward. We understand international trade and investment law enforcement and policy, and we know the enforcement agencies and policymakers.

Our group of trade, WTO and customs lawyers from across our six offices in Canada is recognized worldwide as a leader in its field. Our trade, WTO and customs lawyers are regularly involved in significant trade matters – making representations before key national and international decision-making bodies, including government panels, domestic courts and trade tribunals.

Dentons' trade, WTO and customs lawyers are particularly well-positioned to advise a wide range of clients in Canada and abroad, including: multinationals, small and medium-sized corporations, governments, individuals, non-governmental organizations (NGOs) and industry associations.

Our trade, WTO and customs lawyers advise and represent clients across a broad spectrum of matters, including:

- Trade remedies
- Customs and border matters
- Government relations
- WTO and trade agreements
- International trade contracts
- International investment treaties and disputes
- Import/export controls and sanctions
- International anti-corruption, governance and compliance
