

Overview

Our clients ship every conceivable type of goods and services to every region of the world. This global commerce happens within a web of complex and sometimes-contradictory trade rules that can slow or stop your products headed to their destinations. Avoiding these delays, especially in the case of military, strategic or “dual-use” products, requires advance planning and preparation. Extricating your products once they are caught or delayed requires knowledgeable advice and advocacy.

Our lawyers will work with you to develop robust, sustainable internal trade compliance systems. Dentons helps you navigate the universe of permits, clearances and reports that stands between you and your markets. If your products are waylaid, we will advocate for you with regulatory and enforcement authorities to get them on their way again.