

Overview

There is an increasing wave of trade protection activity worldwide, such as anti-dumping, countervailing duties and safeguards. Our clients rely on Dentons' solid experience in the full spectrum of trade remedies. They count on our daily assistance, as well as on our delivery of successful results.

We help you to monitor prices and analyze trade flows, so you can receive early warnings of forthcoming trade remedy risks—an essential factor in commercial planning for a global business.

In close collaboration with your team, and in full knowledge of your industry, we develop a defensive or offensive strategy under tight deadlines. We then analyze the possibilities to adapt existing trade remedies to the best interests of your business. We listen to your concerns and advise what is best for you in given circumstances. In ongoing procedures, you will benefit from our ability to perform complex calculations and implement effective negotiations with investigating authorities. Let us assist in government affairs strategies in the process leading to final decisions.

The Dentons' team has helped globally active clients in an extensive number of anti-dumping and other trade remedy proceedings in the US, Canada, the EU, Russia, China and other jurisdictions worldwide. Our hands-on experience covers direct representation in investigations, hearings, undertaking negotiations and all types of reviews, including refund and anti-circumvention investigations. Tap our global know-how to help you handle the trade remedy risks of the present day and achieve positive outcomes, which are vital to your cross-border business objectives.

Representative Experience

- China Iron and Steel Association (CISA): Advising before the European Commission on dumping, injury and public interest in the EU anti-dumping and anti-subsidy investigations concerning organic coated steel products from China. This was a high-profile case that, for the first time, combined anti-dumping and anti-subsidy investigations against Chinese steel products in the EU.
- Industry association: Advising regarding potential causes of action against public bodies, concerning a decision by the public body to use its agreements with the association's members to recover a substantially greater proportion of its running costs than previously.
- World-leading solar panel exporter: Representing the client in the EU anti-dumping and anti-subsidy investigations by the European Commission concerning imports of solar panels from China on dumping, subsidy and injury aspects. This was a very high-profile case, which attracted the attention of many major media sources.
