

Overview

Morocco is the fifth largest African economy by GDP and enjoys one of the most politically and socially stable environments. With its modern infrastructure, robust financial sector and strong outbound foreign direct investments in a broad range of sectors, Morocco offers ample opportunities for investors and industrial companies.

Morocco stands out as the most developed market economy in North Africa. Due to its attractive business incentives, qualified and affordable workforce, extensive network of bilateral tax treaties, political stability and convenient travel connections to Europe, the United States and the rest of Africa, the country has increasingly attracted international inward investment and has become a major source of capital to other countries in Africa.

Our lawyers in Casablanca are led by two partners who share a combined experience of 20 years in Morocco. Deeply engaged in the region, our team has broad experience and a strong reputation in many business sectors including energy, mining, manufacturing, real estate, M&A, financing and PPP.

Dentons' office in Casablanca is uniquely positioned to provide clients with support for activity in Morocco, the rest of the Maghreb and also in sub-Saharan, Western and Central African regions. Also as a key part of our global Africa practice, the team can service your needs across the whole continent through our Africa desks and network of associated firms.
