

Overview

Dentons Beijing office features more than 800 well-established, highly experienced lawyers and professionals with experience in a multitude of industries. The office is emblematic of Dentons' seamlessly integrated and polycentric approach, offering a unique blend of local and global talent.

Our lawyers are often invited to deliver speeches at events and conferences sponsored by government, educational, commercial and other prestigious institutions. Many are part-time or visiting professors at renowned law schools and research institutions throughout China, and most provide legal research or act as consultants to various departments of the State Council and provincial and municipal governments. Lawyers in our Beijing office are very active in assisting the Chinese government in drafting civil, commercial, criminal and administrative legislation.

Lawyers in Dentons' Beijing office have helped guide some of the largest and most sophisticated transactions in China, especially in sectors such as energy, real estate, construction, manufacturing, retail, logistics, insurance and financial institutions.
