

Overview

The citizens, local government officials and business leaders of New Orleans know only too well the importance of renewing and protecting our well-loved city. You require a partner who can provide keen legal insight to fulfill your vision for the city's present and future.

When you work with the New Orleans office of Dentons, our passion for excellence becomes your asset. Whether your needs involve navigating legal issues pertaining to road building, wind turbines, the development of waste facilities, or marine resources and protected species, we know the terrain.

Your city is our city. When the New Orleans City Council needed an advisor to reduce energy bills, Dentons guided a successful resolution that saved energy utility customers several billion dollars.

Natural and man-made catastrophes breed high-stakes, high-volume litigation, calling for thoughtful strategies delivered on short notice. Our rapid response approach propelled by depth of industry knowledge enables us to act with confidence.

To anticipate and address your needs, we focus on energy, environmental and resources issues. Partner with us to benefit from outstanding Federal Energy Regulatory Commission and state regulatory capabilities, an energy litigation team with an unprecedented success rate, a specialized environmental team, a substantial capital markets and finance practice, and a dedicated full-service oil and gas practice—all complemented by a highly regarded public policy and government affairs practice.

Our New Orleans clients include public, private and nonprofit businesses in industries such as telecommunications, banking and finance, insurance, government and more.
