

Overview

Dentons' San Diego presence has been a vital part of business and civic life in the city for 138 years. Situated in the “golden triangle” and apex of San Diego’s biotech and technology hub, our team has been at the leading edge of the city's growth and development into a major business market, technology center and tourist destination. We are intensely involved in the Southern California community, serving civic, charitable and professional organizations and providing pro bono representation to a broad array of institutions and worthy causes.

Our legal and business experience is broad and diverse, including highly regarded litigation and appeals, real estate transactions and finance, and biotech intellectual property practices. We represent a wide range of clients, from Fortune 100 companies to small local businesses, and are experienced in complex class actions, trade secret and patent litigation, environmental compliance, corporate transactions and securities, employment law, construction disputes, white collar defense, internal investigations, business disputes and patent prosecution. We are experienced in all aspects of litigation, whether in state or federal courts, arbitration, mediation, administrative proceedings or appeals.

In addition to providing you stellar service, our lawyers, professionals and staff are committed to diversity and to serving our community. This commitment is reflected in the quality legal services we provide through the San Diego Volunteer Lawyer Program, and in the wide range of civil pro bono cases in which we are involved. The diverse ideas and perspectives our team offers help us to identify distinct opportunities for you, resulting in effective and creative business solutions.

Frequent coordination with our Silicon Valley, Los Angeles, San Francisco, and Orange County offices—in addition to our offices worldwide—gives Dentons’ San Diego offices both a significant California presence and a global perspective.

Through our global reach, our San Diego lawyers can provide comprehensive legal counsel to a broad spectrum of businesses, including many startup ventures, closely held firms, publicly traded companies and multinational corporations headquartered in Southern California and across the United States, Mexico, Canada, Asia, Africa and Europe. Our integrated San Diego team gives you a competitive edge, wherever your business takes you.
