Overview

Inga Masjule is the Chief Talent Officer of Dentons US, where she is responsible for developing and implementing the Firm's talent strategy to enhance the Firm's ability to attract, develop, retain and engage its lawyers, professionals and business services staff in the United States. Leading a team of professionals in the Firm's Legal Recruitment, Professional Development, Diversity & Inclusion and Human Resources departments, Inga's remit includes on-boarding, performance management, succession planning, organizational development, and adapting current trends and innovations in talent management and strategic human resources practices. Working with colleagues at all levels, she acts as a key advisor to leadership, providing strategic guidance on all talent management and human resources issues.

Inga brings to Dentons more than two decades of US and international experience developing and leading innovative people programs that support a strategic talent agenda. Prior to joining Dentons, she led and guided a full range of human resource, recruitment, talent innovation, engagement, and diversity and inclusion initiatives for a leading global law firm based in New York. Prior to that, as a Global HRO and Executive Director of the large offshore law firm, Inga developed the firm's global people strategy and managed its global operations for recruitment, training and professional development, compensation and benefits and HR information systems. During this time, Inga supported significant growth of the firm, opening several offices and developing a new fiduciary and corporate administration business. Inga also spent five years in London as a Regional HR Director of a leading global law firm where she managed the HR function for twenty-five countries in Europe, Middle East and Africa. During this time, she led the build out and management of an HR Shared Services Centre in Manila, Philippines.

Inga's early career included various HR, recruiting and change management roles in Canada and Europe in telecommunications, medical services, technology and consulting.
