

Dentons lawyers author UAE chapter of The Employment Law Review

May 7, 2020

Members of Dentons' UAE Labour and Employment practice have continued their annual tradition of contributing to The Employment Law Review, by providing the UAE chapter for this 11th edition, which is published by London-based Law Business Research.

The review covers 44 different jurisdictions and provides an important overview for those seeking to understand and comply with the employment laws in which they operate, and it is likely of particular relevance to in-house lawyers and HR professionals of multinational corporations.

Partners Iain Black and Catherine Beckett along with Senior Associate Craig Hughson and Associate Anna Terrizzi, provide an overview of UAE employment law developments during 2019, and also look to what the future of UAE employment law may hold.

In addition to coverage of hot employment topics, the chapter provide insights on topical areas including:

- basics of entering an employment relationship;
- restrictive covenants;
- wages;
- foreign workers;
- global policies;
- parental leave;
- translation;
- employee representation;
- data protection;
- discontinuing employment; and
- transfer of business.
