

March 12, 2019

Katie Scuoler examines the vital role that allotments play in creating communities of the future. The housing shortage and housing affordability, particularly in the South East of England, is a near-constant media headline. Building on its manifesto pledge, in its Autumn 2017 Budget, the government announced its ambition to deliver 300,000 new homes a year by the mid-2020s.

This article was first published in Property Law Journal (March 2019) and is also available at www.lawjournals.co.uk.

Your Key Contacts

Katie Scuoler

Senior Associate, London

D +44 20 7246 7386

katie.scuoler@dentons.com