

May 17, 2019

The year 2018 was rather a colourful year for competition law in Turkey, with the Turkish Competition Authority (TCA) directing its focus more and more on digital platforms, and evolving its policies towards to protection of competition. We believe there is great value in analysing the developments over the past year, in order to develop an outlook for 2019 and years to come in a dynamic and fast-changing field, competition law.

To celebrate the 21st anniversary of the practice of competition law in Turkey, Dentons and our associated law firm in Turkey, Balcioglu Selcuk Akman Keki has developed the Antitrust Review 2018 Turkey report. In this report, our Competition, Public Policy and Regulation Team in Istanbul examines competition law practice in 2018 across six key areas: competition advocacy, merger control, unilateral conduct, cartels, vertical relations, and agency effectiveness.
