

Overview

As governments around the world continue to focus extraordinary attention on the prospect of a nuclear Iran, Dentons helps clients understand, navigate and comply with the international architecture of Iran sanctions. Our team integrates deep experience in the Iran sanctions policy-making process with sophisticated industry knowledge to help clients identify and evaluate the full scope of any Iran sanctions-related issue. We provide comprehensive counsel that is rooted in a firm understanding of Iran sanctions laws, regulations and policies, and informed by the commercial context.

Throughout Dentons' global platform, we have experience advising clients on a wide range of matters involving sanctions against Iran, including:

- Compliance reviews and internal investigations
- Cross-border transactions
- Exports or re-exports of goods, services or technologies
- Governmental investigations and enforcement actions
- Litigation, arbitration and other types of disputes

We also routinely provide legal services on an advisory basis, to help clients vet potential business plans and investment decisions, and identify and mitigate potential risk.
