Overview

Jian Zhang is a senior partner at Dentons, based in Shenzhen, with an emphasis on business and corporate affairs such as M&A, capital markets, securities financing, real estate and construction projects and major business disputes and litigations.

Jian has managed the legal aspects of large and often complex transactions involving multiple parties and many levels of professional advisors. He also provides advice on a wide range of corporate and commercial law matters in a number of industries, including financial institutions, energy, communication and transportation, manufacturing, real estate and construction, retail, TMT, screen culture, environmental protection, logistics storage, among others. He also serves as regular legal counsel and special project legal counsel for numerous well-known corporations.

In addition, Jian works extensively with numerous companies including transnational corporation, domestic and foreign listed companies, financial and quasi-financial institutions, private equity firms, government agencies and state-owned enterprises and well-known private enterprises. Jian's team consists of experienced lawyers and professionals. With Dentons' globalized legal services network focusing on a wide range of industries and a keen sense of the local market, Jian's team is able to utilize sources of Dentons to best serve clients from home and aboard.
