Overview

Martin is a corporate insurance and regulatory partner in Dentons' London office and a recognized leading practitioner in his field. He is also Global Chair of Dentons' Insurance group with responsibility for implementing strategy and leveraging Dentons' global reach and resource.

Martin has particular experience in mergers and acquisitions, joint ventures and corporate finance. He also regularly works on restructuring, commercial and regulatory matters.

Martin advises across the market, and clients include Lloyd's of London managing agents, insurance brokers, run-off consolidators, and insurtech start-ups/investors.

Recognition

Martin has been ranked by Chambers UK as a key individual for corporate insurance and as someone who is "very good and knows his stuff" by Legal 500 in the past. He has been praised in previous editions of Legal 500 for his "quiet, effective, good-humoured mastery of deals and detail" and his "user-friendly, get-things-done" approach. Martin has also been recognized as one of the world's leading insurance lawyers by The International Who's Who of Insurance & Reinsurance Lawyers, and was also included in the latest edition of the Best Lawyers in the UK publication for insurance law.

Insights

Martin is a regular contributor to the press, in particular the trade press, on market developments. His publication engagement includes:

- "What impact might COVID-19 have on the insurance industry?," April 9, 2020
- Co-author, "Culture and corporate governance - How do you know if your firm has a healthy culture?," February 11, 2020
- Co-author, "The US and EU finalize a Covered Agreement on insurance and reinsurance regulation,"

- Co-author, "Brexit: Breaking Up Is Hard to Do," Best's Review, January 1, 2017

Activities and Affiliations

Martin is also co-chair of our Inclusion Council for the UK and Middle East, and leads our wellbeing network. Through these roles, he seeks to set a clear wellbeing vision for the Firm, lead by example in encouraging greater diversity and inclusion, help to destigmatize mental health issues, better equip people to be resilient, and encourage greater innovation. He is also keen to leverage data and technology more to deliver enhanced wellbeing options for staff, and collaborate with clients and organizations to advance the wellbeing agenda.
