

Online seminar: Scaling up Green Hydrogen in Europe

Date and time:

February 26, 2021

Green hydrogen is increasingly seen as an indispensable part of the Energy Transition. Ambitious targets for producing it have been set for the mid-2020s and 2030.

Many projects and use cases are proposed, but how is an industry that currently only operates at the level of tens of MW going to reach GW-scale quickly – and efficiently – enough? Will access to cheap energy at the boundaries of and/or outside Europe help to make green hydrogen competitive in the mid to long term, even taking the need to transport hydrogen into account?

Dentons, ILF and Operis have produced a white paper on Scaling up Green Hydrogen in Europe. The white paper was launched at our online seminar.

The speakers at our online seminar were:

- Adam Brown, Managing Practice Development Lawyer, Dentons
- Erwan Fournis, Head of Financial Advisory, Operis
- Dr. Gabriele Haas, Partner, Dentons
- Jens Kottsieper, Business Development Manager Hydrogen, Energy and New Business, ILF
- Jean-Pierre Maurand, Investment Director, Meridiam
- Thomas Schubert, Partner, Dentons
- Roland Schulze, Managerial Adviser on Low Carbon Technologies, European Investment Bank
- Marinus Tabak, Plant Manager, RWE

The recording of our online seminar you can find in the section “Online seminar recording”.
