

Salans strengthens Energy Sector in Germany

January 30, 2013

International law firm Salans has strengthened its partnership with corporate lawyer Dr. Peter Mayer, who (until now) has been acting as counsel in the Berlin office. He mainly advises clients from the energy and specialty chemicals sector on M&A transactions and questions regarding corporate and real estate law. From now on, he will also focus on the expansion of the German energy practice.

Dr. Peter Mayer joined Salans in 2009. Prior to this, he was working for another international law firm and also completed a secondment in the legal department of a German subsidiary of the French energy supplier GDF Suez.

“We are very happy about this partner promotion. Dr. Peter Mayer represents a great enrichment for the German partnership, both professionally and personally,” comments Andreas Ziegenhagen, Managing Partner Germany at Salans.

Dr. Peter Mayer is one of altogether three new partners which were promoted to the Salans partnership internationally.

Salans thus aims for a further strengthening of its service in the energy sector in Germany and is guided by its broad positioning on a global level. The combination with SNR Denton and FMC to form Dentons creates one of the largest sector groups worldwide.

In addition, Salans' positioning within the area of energy in Germany has been further reinforced by the promotion of competition lawyer Dr. Josef Hainz, who has become counsel. He regularly advises clients regarding competition matters in the energy sector. Besides Dr. Josef Hainz, employment lawyer Matthias Stelzer was also promoted to the position of counsel. Counsel status at Salans corresponds to that of a salary partner in other law firms.
