

Seven Dentons partners named to BTI Client Service All-Stars

February 11, 2016

Global law firm Dentons was recognized for outstanding client service by BTI Consulting in its annual Client Service All-Stars report. BTI surveyed more than 300 legal decision-makers from the world's leading organizations to identify lawyers who provide top-quality client service. Seven Dentons partners across North America were recognized on the 2016 list.

"The Dentons approach is focused on delivering clients substantive experience, with deep industry knowledge, wherever clients require assistance," said Joe Andrew, Global Chairman. "Our All-Stars are standout examples of this approach in action."

"Each one of these lawyers are focused on acting as true business partners for our clients," said Elliott Portnoy, Global CEO. "Just meeting a client need is no longer enough. Lawyers need to anticipate needs and deliver proactive, creative business solutions."

According to the survey, just 10 percent of "BigLaw" firms were home to multiple attorneys recognized by general counsel for their superior ability to serve clients. Of that list, just eight firms had at least five attorneys land on BTI's All-Star list. The top two firms had eight partners named All-Stars, with Dentons coming in a close third with seven partners recognized.

Dentons ranked No. 11 of 322 law firms in the BTI Client Service A-Team 2016 report, which identified law firms based on client service excellence for the corporate law firm market.

2016 Dentons All-Stars include:

Litigation and Dispute Resolution

- Laura Leigh Geist, San Francisco

Competition and Antitrust

- Stafford Matthews, Silicon Valley

Real Estate

- Gary A. Goodman, New York

Labour and Employment

- Barbara B. Johnston, Calgary
