

Dentons recruits Claudia Thomas to UK Energy and Government teams

October 8, 2021

Claudia Thomas has joined Dentons' UK Government and Energy, Transport and Infrastructure teams as Counsel. She brings more than a decade of experience as a government lawyer, advising Her Majesty's Government on the financing of nuclear and renewables projects, and other regulatory and legislative matters in the energy sector. More recently Claudia was part of the UK's EU exit negotiations team, and led a team of lawyers at Deputy Director level in the Cabinet Office, advising on trade and international law matters connected to EU exit.

Prior to joining Government Claudia was an associate at a US law firm in London, specialising in international energy projects. At Dentons, Claudia will work in the firm's Energy and Government teams, bringing her detailed understanding of government policy making, public law and a wide range of energy sector transactional and regulatory matters.

Co-lead of Dentons' substantial Government practice and Global Energy Co-chair Christopher McGee-Osborne said, "We're really pleased to be able to announce this latest step in the development of our market-leading Government and Energy teams. Claudia will be able to add great insight in our work for private sector clients and our Government clients will know that we have added another senior, authoritative ex-Government lawyer to the team able to advise them."
