Dentons has been ranked as a top tier firm by IFLR1000 in its fourth annual Guide to Energy and Infrastructure. The publication identifies top law firms operating in the energy and infrastructure sector in a number of strategic regions, including Asia-Pacific, Central and Eastern Europe, Latin America, Nordic and Baltic, and Sub-Saharan Africa. IFLR1000s Energy and Infrastructure rankings recognize market leaders in terms of legal advice across a number of business lines: energy generation and distribution (including renewables), mining, oil and gas, social infrastructure, transport, telecommunications networks, and utilities.

Dentons is ranked as a Tier 1 firm in seven categories and is recognized for its work in 15 countries and four regions. Nineteen of our lawyers are listed as leading lawyers in energy and infrastructure, and two are recognized as rising stars.

This recognition for energy and infrastructure globally reflects the growing scale of Dentons' legal offering to clients in these sectors and the excellence and commitment in client service delivered by our global energy and infrastructure teams.
