Overview

Wojciech Wąsowicz, PhD, advocate, of counsel in Dentons' Warsaw office. He is a member of the Arbitration and Construction Litigation team.

Wojciech specializes in civil and commercial law. His focus is on disputes between entrepreneurs and state and local authorities, real estate matters, public procurements, as well as typical commercial disputes related to the improper performance of construction or real estate contracts.

He also represents clients before common and arbitration courts in Poland in construction disputes, disputes relating to defective administrative, corporate and competition-related decisions.

With respect to construction disputes, he represents contractors in disputes with contracting authorities as well as investors and general contractors in disputes with subcontractors. He is mainly involved in projects related to the construction of road infrastructure, railroads and gas transmission pipelines.

He also acts as either a defense counsel or an attorney-in-fact for victims in criminal business cases involving liability of corporate authorities, irregularities in bidding procedures, disclosure of confidential information and actions undertaken to the detriment of creditors.
